Foreword—

This collection of past incidents of college life at MacMurray is in no way intended to be accepted as history; our limitations are such that historical fact can only take the part of foundation structure. We should like recorded, however, some of the apparently curious stories, that may be neglected as regards history; for these stories are part of the background of college life then and now.

TO MRS. MARIAN
CHASE-SCHAEFFER

Her smile, her understanding, her sympathy, and her strength remain monumental in the heart of each student.

Dedication—

The Beginnings

THEY FOUNDED US

Long ago some thoughtful men gathered together all ideas concerning the pastime of the less thoughtful sex. From this spark "girls" became "females;" later they were "women," and today we hear them called "MacMurrians."

The Illinois Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in session at Paris, Illinois, September 23, 1846, Bishop Hamline presiding, appointed as the first Board of Trustees, with authority to establish a school for the higher education of women, Rev. Peter Akers, Rev. Peter Cartwright, Rev. W. D. R. Trotter, Rev. Wm. J. Rutledge, William Thomas, Matthew Stacy, Nicholas Milburn, William Brown and William C. Stribling. These men met in the Methodist Church at Jacksonville, October 10, 1846, and organized by the election of Rev. Peter Cartwright, President; William Brown, Secretary and Matthew Stacy, Treasurer. They are therefore entitled to recognition as the Original Founders of the College.

The School was first chartered in 1847 as the Illinois Conference Female Academy. In October 1848 the first classes were organized, and a year later Bishop James laid the cornerstone of the first building. By 1852 the first building was completed, and the institution named Illinois Conference Female College.

In the first catalog after announcing the Preparatory Department, in which was to be taught "Reading, Writing, Spelling, Defining, Geography, English Grammar, Arithmetic, Elements of Natural Science and History, Watts—On the Mind, the Construction of Maps, and Needle Work," the following statement is made: "The requisites for admission into the Academic Department, are a knowledge of English Grammar, Geography, Arithmetic and History." Then comes the following course of study:

The first president, Rev. James F. Jacques, played a roll in national affairs as well as those of a local nature. He was president from 1848 to 1855. The College Greetings for May 1916 says: "At the outbreak of the war the Governor had sent for Jacques to come to Springfield where he became an invaluable adviser. One day a blunt, calm man obtained an interview with the Governor for the purpose of telling him he thought that he knew how to get troops for him. The Governor unimpressed by the stranger's crude manner, would have hastily dismissed him but Jacques who was present suggested that he be asked to return on the following day. Persuaded by Jacques, Governor Yates consented to allow the stranger a desk in his office and gave him the task of writing letters. About two weeks later the Governor said to Jacques, 'That man you thought was one I should keep, hasn't yet written a letter I'd send out.' 'I didn't suppose,' replied Jacques, 'that he would be valuable as a clerk. I considered him better as military drill master. Now there's the Twenty-first on the borders of mutiny. Put him in charge of them and see what's in him.' 'By George, I'll do it.' By heeding this advice of the ex-schoolmaster parson the world knows the rest, for that was the beginning of Grant's career. Since Dr. Jacques was not the type of man to send others into danger while he himself remained safely at home, he, too, soon joined the defenders of the flag. To this self-appointed task he brought to bear the same enthusiasm, interest, and spirit of helpfulness which had characterized his management of the early days of MacMurray. At the close of the war he returned to his earlier calling, that of preaching."

Tales of the Long Ago

There is a fascinating interest in the stories which alumnae of early years relate when they are with us on reunion occasions. We do not want to forget how the opening days of the College in 1848-49 and the fifties brought the students. In carriages and wagons, from places far and near, they came with their hair-covered trunks, boxes and home made candles, pretty poke bonnets in band boxes, and perhaps a feather bed, if a fond mother wished her daughter to have her accustomed comfort. It was necessary until the completion of the first College building, with its stately columns reaching to the top of the third story, for board to be secured among the people of the town. There were no bathrooms, no running water anywhere, so the students provided themselves with wooden wash tubs, which, when not in use, could be pushed under the bed, with the various devices used with it to provide a temporary privacy. It is hard to conceive what disorder the daily morning inspection would have revealed had it not been for the stow-away place under the bed, concealed by the valance surrounding at least two sides of it.

But for many years, whether living in the college dormitory or elsewhere, there were apt to be three or four girls in a room, and a little stove with wood for fuel was the commanding object at one side. A girl leaving the room on any errand was apt to be followed by calls from her room-mate to "bring some wood up when you come back." A strip of molding with hooks or nails answered in place of a closet and held the modest wardrobes deemed suitable for school girl use. Gathered about the little table in the evening study hours, the girls labored over their compositions, or mastered the problems in Loomis' Algebra in a way which we still hear "made things hum" in that most remarkable of class rooms. Room-mates took turns in furnishing a dozen candles which were burned one at a time, unless some especially dark and dismal task called for more light. Then they indulged themselves with a brilliant illumination and recklessly burned two or three.

In all times the years of learning have been the years of romance. The beautiful flower of youth so ordains it. No wonder that the convent system of seclusion, mistrust, and espionage brought forth its natural fruits. Clandestine breaking of rules and regulations had their episodes in midnight feasts with curtained transoms often followed by the panic of discovery. The play side of a young girl's life sixty and seventy years ago was given little thought after she had outgrown her doll. She was then supposed to be a lady, and such was her constant admonition. Athletic impulses were disgraceful and hoyden—to be suppressed at all times.

Keep the Homefires Burning

They burned a bit too brightly, because during the next ten years a new west wing was completed, only to burn down a few years later. In the meantime Rev. Reuben Andrus and Rev. A. S. McCoy had both served as presidents in the "Jail for Angels," as the late William Jennings Bryan was known to say. Rev. Charles Adams was president during the Civil War. Here we are reminded of the attention Illinois College fellows took, even in those bashful days. They were brave soldiers and deserved to get a few minutes to "stop off" on East State to say goodbye and enjoy some candy on the way to the station. Latin was rather neglected some of those evenings, we fear, but a race was emancipated.

The years from 1862 to 1893 were full of discouragement and difficulty. In the first decade of that period there were three fires; one in 1861, one in 1870, and one in 1872. In the later years of the period the School had to contend with the rapid growth of High Schools and with the opening of the men's colleges to women. Many schools for women died in these years, and the Illinois Female College lived only because of the devotion and sacrifice of friends. Chief and deserving of special mention were, Dr. Wm. H. DeMotte, president from 1868 to 1875, and Dr. Wm. F. Short, president from 1875 to 1893, of whom an old student writes: "I was but little more than a child when I saw him first. It was the occasion of my first formal entrance into the College and very formal, indeed, it seemed to me. My mother had taken my younger and smaller sister and myself over to inquire of our fitness for the Intermediate Department and I have never forgotten the gracious and courtly manner of our greeting. He was in the office and while we were sitting there Mrs. Short entered and with a smile asked, 'Mr. Short, can you let me have five cents?' As I recollect it the change was needed in the settlement of some bill she held in her hand. With a twinkle of the eye he reached the small coin over to her, remarking, 'You are exceedingly modest in your demands this morning, my dear'."

Dr. Joseph R. Harker

In 1893 Dr. Joseph R. Harker was chosen president of what soon became Illinois Woman's College. Under the inspiration and guidance of his devoted leadership the College grew, and grew, and grew. The East wing was built, the West wing extended to the south, the front of old Main built out to the west, valuable grounds added to the campus—the Power House built, Music Hall, the Gymnasium and Harker Hall came into being. Endowment was started and made into a foundation support for the college. Standards were being gradually raised; and the College granted her first Academic degree in 1908.

How the Swimming Pool Got A Gym

As told by Phyllis Wilkinson in 1917 Illiwoco.

There was a big school in the State of Illinois, in a dreamy, sleepy old city; and the school grew and grew until it was big, big as a block, and like all well-regulated schools it always needed things. So the Man Who Says What's What said: "We must have $180,000 or we'll grow little and narrow and disintegrate." And, that will never do because people came even from distant Egypt to grow big and broad and satisfy their curiosities. And when the girls heard the Man Who Says What's What (for it was a girls' school you know) they wanted to begin to show their big broad interest at once so they met and decided to give up their sundaes and hamburgers and afternoon communion with Theda Bara and Mary Pickford. They sang, they yelled, they shouted "Endowment"; they pledged $5,900 among themselves.

And one time after the Man Who Says What's What had persuaded a man who had $10,000 and more besides to give it to the College, the girls in the school had a torchlight parade late at night, all through the town in the snow. And they kept on getting money and more money until on June first they had all of the $180,000.

But the man had to have even more money to have his school stay a standardized college. That means a college that could satisfy approved methods. And on Founders' Day (that is a feast day among these people) the Man Who Says What's What started on a new campaign for $100,000.

The girls worked this time, too, so that their satiable curiosity might continue to be satisfied after the approved methods. They sold things; one senior even offered to sell her senior privileges! Other girls closed windows in the morning, some served things to eat, sandwiches, tea, and chocolate. All for Endowment.

And now comes the Almost-So Story, about the Gym. All the time they were talking about Endowment the Man was telling them they needed a new gymnasium too, so that their arms and legs and things could keep pace with their satiable curiosity, which was in their heads, and might topple them over when they wanted to go to the reel drama or the ten-cent store.

Then, one day, this same Man Who Says What's What said that the girls in the school were going to have a new Gym and that it already had one part which would go to make up its internals; for some good, kind man had given it a Swimming Pool. Then all the little would-be mermaids in the school grew very, very enthusiastic, because you knew that meant that almost the most expensive part of the Gym was a sure 'nough sure-thing, and the rest of the Gym, which would only cost several thousand dollars would be a mere nothing.

Miss Mary Johnston

Senior Class

In 1930, two hundred and fifty freshmen accepted the challenge of previous green and white classes and set forth to conquer the MacMurray world as they might. Now forty-one of the most valiant have triumphed and reign as seniors. The history of their rise to seniority was at times glorious and triumphant and at other times monotonous, lonely, and discouraging.

Throughout four years, the green and white banner was advanced with thoroughness and versatility. Within the ranks of the class are champion athletes, talented dancers, literary geniuses, and dramatic stars. The seniors have watched the college change her name, raise her prestige through the library drive, and keep astride the times by means of the introduction of first the Pan-American and later the Economic Conferences.

Social occasions will share an equal place with academic honors in the memories of the class of '34. They established the tradition of entertaining the sister class on the night of recognition and introduced coffee dances which have proved popular. The intimate memories of informal teas and coffees, engagement coffees and guest coffees are probably most cherished.

In all class activities Miss Johnston's intimate association and valuable inspiration is dominant. It is with a tinge of sadness that the members of the class of '34 take leave of her and end their college careers only to go out and meet the demands which make the history of their lives.

Senior Recognition

Formal recognition service for the senior class was held on Wednesday, October the twenty-fifth at the regular chapel hour.

The procession was led by President McClelland, Dean Hawkins and faculty. The senior class followed, led by Betty Ann Brown, class president. Emma Mary Foote, a member of the senior class, played the processional.

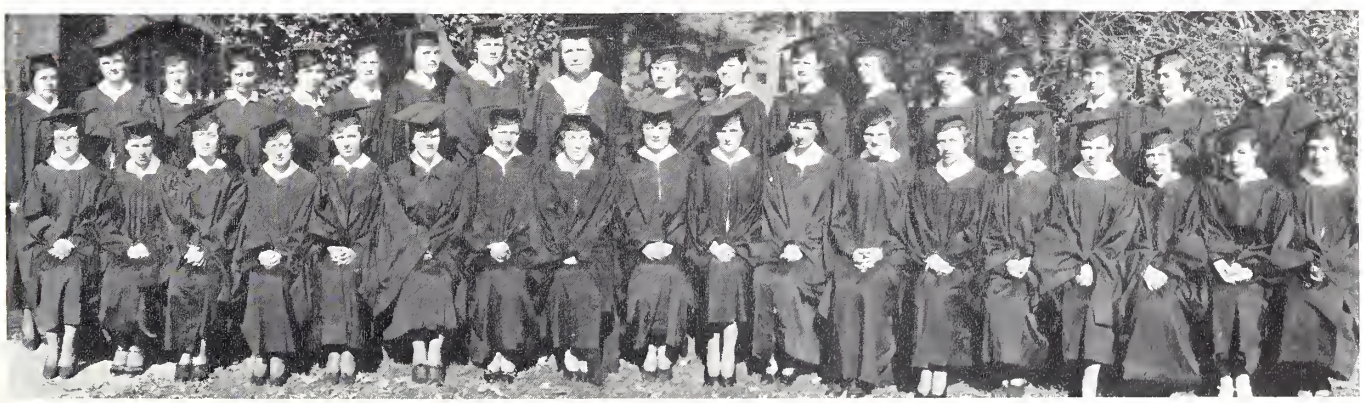

President McClelland opened the service by a prayer, followed by the class hymn, "I Would Be True." "Hail to MacMurray," composed by Mildred Rose '34 and Vivian Swengle ex-'34 was sung.

The subject of the recognition address was based on the normality of certain dissatisfactions. These dissatisfactions must be guided along constructive lines for the benefit of society as a whole. President McClelland told the seniors that they must not construe their dissatisfactions with an unfavorable attitude as they face the problems of life.

The service was concluded by the singing of the Alma Mater.

First Row: Fletcher, Lawrence, Rose, R. Watts, Vasey, Richardson, Browning, Burr, Brown, Stephenson, Booth, Frentzel, T. Watts, Woodrow, Clark, Lambert, Tormey, Steinman.

Seniors

MARGARET BAILEY—Our Psychology authority with a dash of romance in her blood.

JANE BENTLEY—Tearful Jane! Movies are so touching.

MARJORIE BOOTH—One of the Art Brigade.

BETTY ANN BROWN—The power behind the throne.

VIRGINIA BROWNING—Can you feel your dimples on the inside?

MARY BURGESS—Makes old things like new and new things newer.

VIRGINIA BURR—Good-natured and friendly. What more do you want?

ELIZABETH BUKER—Doctors will have some competition when our Elizabeth is let loose.

VIRGINIA CAMERON—Dark, dashing, and daring.

MARIE CANNON—A domesticated college girl.

HAZEL MAE CLARK—A remarkable girl with a remarkable knack for making us beautiful.

WINIFRED CLOSE—The schoolmarm.

GAIL CUMMINGS—Raised in fire and brimstone and engaged to such.

MILDRED DEATON—Your eyebrows are expressive.

DOROTHY DOLAND—Once a task she has begun, she never leaves it till it's done.

VIRGINIA FLETCHER—If wealth were measured in words, she'd be nigh penniless.

EMMA MARY FOOTE—Just naturally good (in music, too).

KATHERYN FRENTZEL—Dancing! She could be anything from a creature in fairyland to a witch doctor!

MARTHA HALL—A dependable redhead.

NATALIE HUNTER—Think of having a brain that really works!

Seniors

CHRISTINE LAMBERT—Give her time. She'll grow.

RUTH LAWRENCE—Ugh! Cod liver oil is so nasty.

LOUISE LUGG—On dramatics she seems to dote.

JUNE McDONOUGH—An unique individual.

VIRGINIA MORGAN—She'll fiddle her way to fame.

AURELIE PROCTOR—MacMurray won't be the same without a Proctor.

HAZEL RENTSCHLER—We like you in red.

VIRGINIA RICHARDSON—She's from Indiana.

MILDRED ROSE—Never daunted.

MARY FRANCES SCOTT—She is most versatile in the field of writing.

ROBERTA STEINMAN—Roberta the Reliable.

WILLIA STEPHENSON—She smiles her way through life.

BETTY SULLENBERGER—Who can forget Betty's laugh, or snort, we should say?

NANCY LEA TORMEY—Couldn't you guess her name was Nancy Lea?

MARIETTA WALKER—The housewife-to-be. May your cakes be always light.

RUTH WATTS—An efficient homebuilder of the future.

THELMA WATTS—Will it always be Joe this and Joe that?

THEO WILSON—She has her own idea of things.

PAULINE WOODROW—Our curly-headed English major.

VIRGINIA VASEY—She is a mystery unto herself.

Cap and Gown

Cap and Gown, the senior honorary society, has been the highest honor attainable at MacMurray since 1924, when it was organized by the presidents of the four major organizations. The purpose of the society is not only to recognize and promote excellence in scholarship and interest in extra-curricular activities, but also to augment the more ephemeral qualities of college spirit and loyalty. It has for its ideal the motto of the college, "Knowledge, Faith, and Service." The decision as to choice of new members rests entirely with the outgoing seniors.

Aurelie Proctor and Theo Wilson were chosen as members of Cap and Gown Society for 1933-1934 by the retiring members of 1932-1933, Karleen Hast and Jeanette Ford. Miss Proctor has served as a member of the Student Government Executive Board for three years, being freshman representative, secretary during her junior year, and president her senior year. She was junior class president.

Miss Wilson has been an excellent student throughout her college career, editing the Illiwoco during her junior and the College Greetings during her senior year, in addition to various other extra-curricular activities.

It is not until after "Last Chapel" that the new members of Cap and Gown are chosen. The student body assembles before the steps of Old Main and the outgoing seniors descend from the steps, select a new member of the organization and usher her up the steps. Then the Cap and Gown pin and senior cap are presented to the new members.

In the Early 1900's It Was This Way

Breakfast over—all the students assembled in the front hall—waiting in line for their morning exercise; each was inspected that rubbers, overshoes and coats were on duty for protection. A faculty member led the line, another brought up the rear and the cavalcade moved down East State Street, around the Alton station—and returned to the old East entrance, healthfully fitted for the day's performance!

Sundays, the same formation moved through the square and out West State to Grace Church for morning service; seniors, freshmen, everyone, well guarded by two of the faculty remained in the pews until the congregation had departed and then returned to the College through the square. The faculty chaperoned all shopping expeditions.

Some stories are told of the late nineties, handed down through faculty and student to later dwellers in the College halls. None more choice than this: "The lady principal" (before the day of MacMurray deans) precise and particular in her cultured presence and in her ideas of what the conduct of young ladies should be—is quoted from one of her weekly talks (Yes they met once a week those days to "Emily Post" their habits and manners): "Young ladies, when the nine-thirty bell rings it means that you should be horizontal between the sheets." Yes—they went to bed at 9:30 then!

Under the corner room, from the rebuilding of '70 way down to the installation of the present heating plant in 1904, a furnace puffed and steamed—tended by faithful old William, the colored janitor of those days. It was a great thing in its day. No more stoves to tend, dozens of them; no more wood to carry up long and creaking stairs; no more joys of winter getting one up in the small cold hours of the morning to start the fire. It was surely a great thing but better systems were devised and the old furnace came to be but a necessary evil at best. What a noise it made and how hot those library floors used to get! The library at that time was in the room now used for "the School for the Little Children."

And in the early 1900's they had morning chapel every day; and every evening immediately after dinner each table filed up to the chapel (now our Social Room) and waited in their seats until every table had come up from dinner. Everybody came—students and all the faculty who had reserved seats. The last faculty member to come in turned on the last light and they had evening prayers. The refrain of

"Sunset and evening Star,
And one clear call for me
And may there be no moaning bar
When I put out to sea"

Holds through the years, as do other recollections.

Junior Class

At the first meeting of the year the class of 1935 was organized as the Junior class. Elsie Ream was elected president; Nadean Hollman, vice-president; Kathryn Gourley, secretary, and Eleanor Warner, treasurer. At that time plans were made for the very successful year that the class has had.

As in the two years gone before the Junior class was successful in athletics. The class hockey team, of which Olive Young was captain, won the hockey cup. The class basketball team, also captained by Olive Young, won second place in the inter-class basketball tournament.

At the Junior Recognition Service held November 22, forty-eight Juniors were formally recognized.

The two main projects of the Junior class have been successfully completed. The success of the 1935 Illiwoco is due to the unfailing efforts of the Editor-in-Chief, Esther Dumas, the Art Editor, Clara Chapin, and the Business Manager, Pauline Crapp. The Junior Prom, of which Helen Wright was chairman, was one of the most pleasing events of the social year.

And now, at the close of this Junior year, the class as a whole would like to express its appreciation to Mrs. Marian Chase Schaeffer, the class advisor who so willingly has given of her time and interest.

Although we thought we had graduated from "green ribbon" days, our St. Patrick dance showed us we had merely gone above the ribbon part of it. And radio dances are fun, aren't they?

Having chosen Miss Holmes as advisor, the class of '36 has proved its ability during these two years of college life. We are, of course, greatly indebted to Miss Hay, who so carefully guided us through our painful freshman days.

During our sophomore year we have maintained an academic standard worthy of MacMurray College and have turned out several winning athletic teams, all of which have displayed fine sportsmanship.

We are all looking forward to our days as upper-classmen, and agree that we have enjoyed mixing together work and play in the correct ratio.

Society Arrives

The Belles Lettres Society was formed in 1851 primarily to cultivate the literary taste of its members, though an even greater ambition was indicated by its motto: "Hic vitae activae preparamus," "Here we prepare for active life." Unfortunately, the fire of 1861 destroyed not only its furniture and books, but also the records of its proceedings. Little is known of its activities before that date, but we can derive something of their nature from a program of the first Belles Lettres Exhibition (corresponding to the open meeting of today). We find this program in an old "Greetings" which reported an address given before the society by Mrs. Griffith, in 1899. It reads as follows:

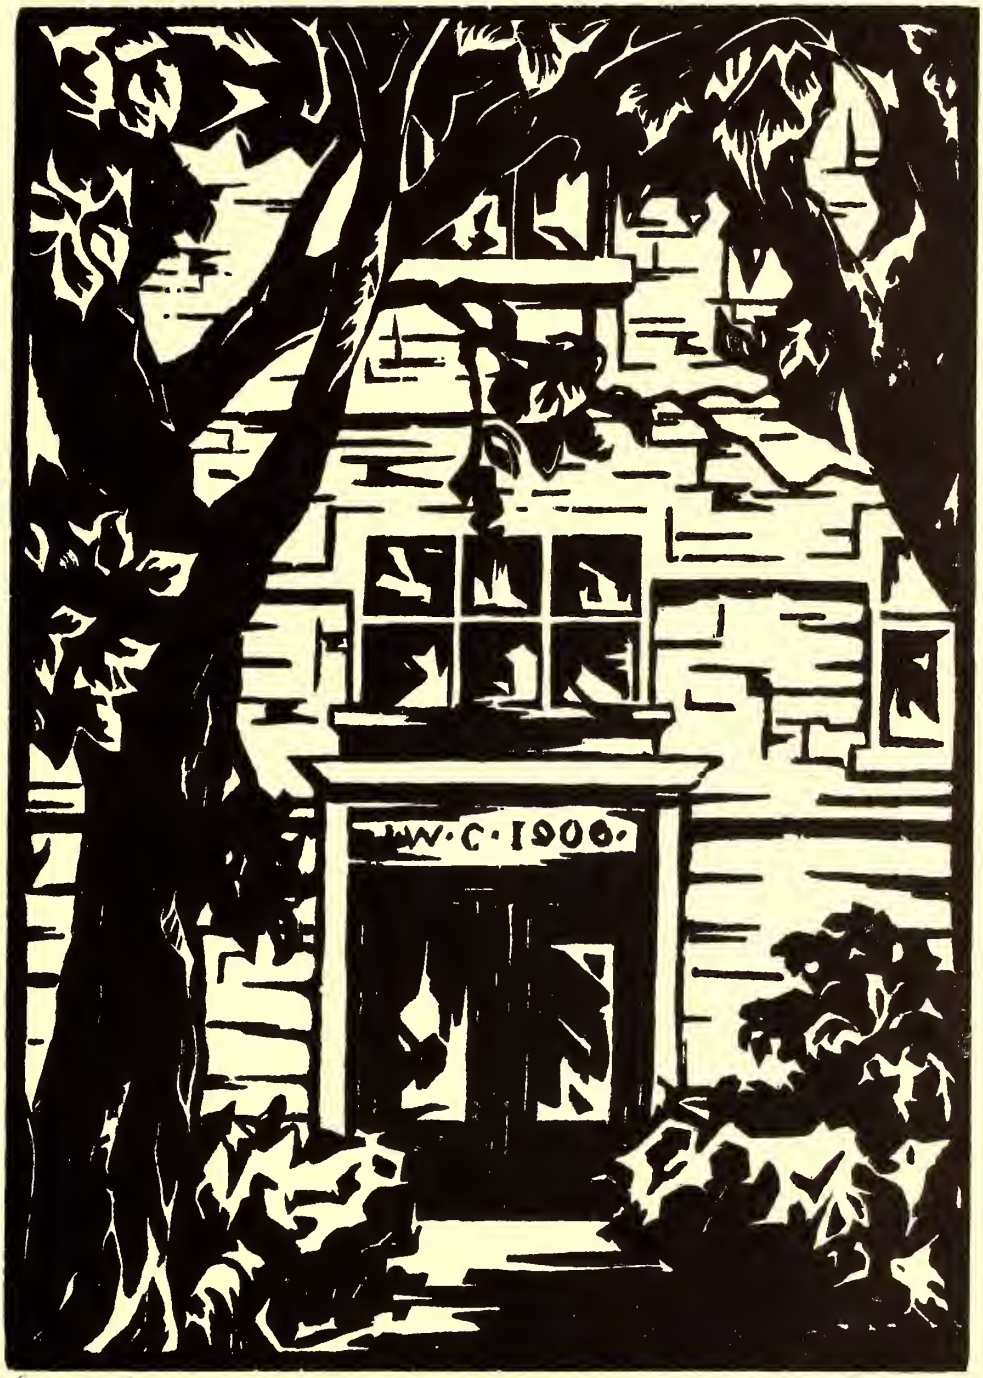

Illinois Conference Female College
Jacksonville
February 17, 1852

Order of Exercises

Prayer
The General Diffusion of Knowledge—Essay
Hail Columbia, varied
Soliloquy of a blackboard—Essay
Ingleside—Trio
Imagining—Essay
Fantasia—"Low Back'd Car."
Louis Napoleon—Essay
California Gold Hunters
Onward and Upward—Essay
Good-night—Song
It will be said of us, they were in a hurry—Essay
Scots wha hae, varied.
The Soul-a poem (original)
Praise the Lord.
Benediction.

This ambitious program was the result of a spirit of rivalry that had grown up between Belles Lettres and Sigma Pi and Phi Alpha, the literary societies at Illinois College. The learned brothers had talked so constantly and enthusiastically about their societies' lively proceedings that Belles Lettres determined to make their organization quite as vital.

SOCIETY ARRIVES (Continued)

On December 8, 1853, the need being felt for another literary society, Phi Nu was founded. The older society dubbed them, in affectionate superiority, "The Trundle Beds" and received in return the name of "The Fossils."

The motto chosen was "Lucem colligentes ut emittamus," "Gathering, that we may scatter light," and its modest purpose was expressed as follows: "To cultivate a correct style of composition, improve our literary taste, and mould a perfect social and moral character." It may be a sign of youth to hitch a wagon to a star, but it is also a sign of aspiration, and aspiration in these societies does seem to have proved the forerunner of achievement.

In 1875, at a joint exhibition of Phi Nu and Belles Lettres, the members of the former society each wore on her left shoulder a tin badge with Phi Nu unmistakably inscribed upon it. The next year they appeared at a Belles Lettres open meeting with a gold ivy leaf worn with a white bow on the left shoulder.

In 1912 on the evening of Founder's Day, Miss Weaver, the dean, called twenty girls (mostly freshmen) to her room for a private consultation. She explained to them the need for new societies and that Belles Lettres and Phi Nu had both generously agreed to invite to membership during that entire year, only sisters of their own members, thus giving the new society an open field for their start. She told these girls that they had been chosen as the founders because of their influence and ability and qualities of leadership. They could not fail to appreciate the honor and set to their task with the utmost enthusiasm. Next evening they met in Phi Nu Hall and Celia Cathcart, president of Phi Nu, and Emily Jayne Allan, president of Belles Lettres, told them something of what their responsibilities would be, and offered to help them in every way possible.

The girls were then divided into groups of ten each—an attempt being made to divide them according to a balance of qualities—and thereafter the two groups met separately. One became Theta Sigma, the other, Lambda Alpha Mu.

Freshman Class

On September twenty-first, one hundred twenty-six passengers aboard the "Freshman Yacht" anchored at Port MacMurray. On All-Hallow's Eve the landlubbers burned the insignia that marked them as inexperienced seamen.

Throughout the year, the newcomers demonstrated their ability in such team sports as hockey, basketball, volley-ball, and swimming. Four one act plays were presented in December by the four societies—honorable mention being given to Delta Theta Nu for the production of "Toy Heart." Four debate teams participated in the Inter-Society debates and several freshmen were members of the Varsity Debate Squad.

With the coming of March, the landlubbers were recognized as full-fledged "Freshmen." Two highlights of the spring season were the Society Banquets on March the tenth and seventeenth.

Their sojourn was climaxed by the "Moonlight Yacht Dance," a grand display of naval tactics, on April the twenty-eighth.

The last of May, the good ship carried its passengers, each grateful for the guidance and loyalty of Admiral (Miss) Hay, to many foreign ports.

Those designated to be the future members of Kappa Sigma Theta Society held their first regular meeting October 11, 1933.

Iona Geach and Mary Louise Stockman represented the society in the Inter-Society Debates held November 21. The society won honorable mention in the Inter-Society One-Act Play Contest. The play was "Her Cousin From Sweden."

Kappa Sigma Theta together with Delta Theta Nu Society held their annual formal dinner, March 10, at the Colonial Inn.

Aside from these activities, parties and teas were held throughout the year by the members of the society.

The president appointed Ruth Bonn chairman of the Program Committee, with Jeanne Merritt and Vineta Daniels assisting. The Social Committee consisted of Helen Croxall, chairman, with Helen Ator and Anna May Greife as assistants.

The social functions of the year consisted in weiner roasts in the Field House, Saturday evening festivities, and a joint program with Phi Kappa Delta in the social room.

On March 17, Phi Tau Epsilon held a banquet with Phi Kappa Delta at the Colonial Inn. The program consisted of talks by Ruth Hyde, and Claire Rawson, a song by Marguerite Smith, reading by Margaret Evans, and a violin solo by Lurene Plumlee. Geraldine Adams was toast mistress. Mrs. Hawkins, Miss Hay, Miss Anderson and Dr. and Mrs. McClelland were guests at the banquet.

During the year, Phi Tau Epsilon took part in the Inter-Society Play Contests with the play "A Cup of China Tea." The society won first place in the Inter-Society Debates, with Claire Rawson and Carol Whitman debating.

As one of the four freshman societies, Phi Tau Epsilon has done its best to uphold the standards of MacMurray, and to further the interests of its members and those of the freshman class.

The Y. W. C. A. of MacMurray College is one of the three organizations in the school which is open to every girl who wishes to live up to the purposes and high ideals of an organization whose main aim is "to realize full and creative life through a growing knowledge of God, to have a part in making this life possible for all people, in this task to seek to understand Jesus and to follow him." This democratic organization makes an effort to develop each girl into a fine member of the social group, with sound moral, mental, physical, and social principles.

The Y. W. C. A. cabinet holds meetings regularly to discuss the numerous activities sponsored during the school year, beginning with a welcome party to the freshmen during Orientation Week and lasting through Commencement Day. The entire student body is responsible for the success of the Thanksgiving Tea Dance, the Christmas Bazaar, the Christmas Party for Children, Carolling, Heart Sister Week, the Easter Party for Children, and the May Breakfast. Besides these social functions, varied and individual programs are planned and presented each Tuesday morning during the regular chapel hour. Once a month a devotional service is conducted by a student, while the other meetings are given over to literature, music or dramatics.

The interests are not confined to our campus. About one half of the budget goes to national and international work which is kept alive by donations made by Associations all over the world. This Association gives financial support to Santiago College, Madras College, to the Secretary in China, Talitha Gerlach, and to the school at Olive Hill, Kentucky, besides giving to the National Student Council and the World's Student Christian Federation.

The Day of Prayer, set aside by all colleges throughout the country, affords us a pause in the rush of our lay duties, and we consider the spiritual purpose for which we strive and which is embodied in the Young Women's Christian Association of MacMurray College.

The Greetings represents a true newspaper endeavoring to express the sentiments of the student body. It records the news of the college in its bi-monthly publications. The Greetings is a member of the Illinois Collegiate Press Association.

The editor, a member of the senior class, is elected by the staff. She shoulders the responsibility of the paper for it is thoroughly a student publication. On her choice of colleagues rests the success of the paper.

The Greetings sponsors a contest each spring in which short stories, one-act plays, essays and poems are submitted and the best material published in the Annual Greetings Magazine. Prizes for these contributions are awarded at the last chapel.

The Student Press Association serves as press correspondent for newspapers in towns represented by members of the student body. The purpose of the club is to give the girls the experience of doing actual newspaper writing and to acquaint other towns with activities carried on in the college. Its work includes the writing and forwarding of articles concerning student affairs and of items of interest regarding individual students.

Each year the Press Club pin is awarded to those girls in the Association whose work has been of outstanding merit. Membership into the organization is on a competitive basis.

On a certain day every year eight girls suddenly appear with ribbons of emerald hue encircling their necks and a penetrating aroma of onions emanating from their persons. The immediate supposition is that these chosen ones have been initiated into the mysteries of that baffling organization, the W. C. T. U. But there the knowledge of the world stops. No one has ever witnessed the secret rites which take place behind closed doors in the dead of night when all common good-folk are asleep. No one outside the secret circle knows the purpose of the organization or the significance of its cryptic name. Its nefarious activities seem doomed to be veiled in eternal mystery which proves that women can keep a secret when there is just cause for it.

The Staff wishes to thank Cornelia Green for her assistance.

"What's next?" sighed a freshman the first noon after her arrival.

"The picture, you know that!"

"What picture?"

"The one for the Illi-Willi- what's it?"

"The Illiwoco," chirped Miss Stranger. "It's the college annual. Didn't you have ———?"

Yes, dear freshmen, plans for Illiwoco were jumping about, perhaps even before you realized that college would soon be claiming you. But what good are plans with no one to use them? So here again, dear new girl, you're in the lead and start the whole procedure!

Pictures? Yes, hundreds of them! Ah! But first—the staff turns theatrical and presents a showlette. In ten minutes they become salesmen, and soon Illiwoco has the purse-string attachment of the school. Before long the very same link has reached far out into the city. Business men, too, yield to the enthusiasm of those who come to call.

No doubt even the finest pictures of Mr. Cameraman would leave the volume not far from the realm of scrap books. But the most elevated of all efforts show themselves in the art work. Thanks to long, long studio hours and a willing spirit, thanks above all to Miss Knopf and Miss Tatro, who have been more than generous with their time, Illiwoco can boast of a real individual distinction in this regard. The original wood cuts of campus views used in the Illiwoco are the work of the Senior Art majors. The illustrations are by Juniors and Sophomores.

And stories! Facts just won't make themselves evident. Someone has assured us that they are on the campus—but where? We've found a few, I think. The rest are still hidden, and don't be surprised if you discover some yourself, just where you're sure they could never be.

To study problems in homemaking and to promote sociability among the students of the department is the object of the Home Economics Club. This object has been successfully carried out under the enthusiastic direction of the club president, Ruth Watts.

During the year Miss Rearick gave the club an interesting account of home life in Hungary. We have had as guests and speakers prominent people in Home Economics work, namely, Miss Sophia Reed, State Club Sponsor. The President, Ruth Watts, with Virginia Burr attended the State Home Economics Conference and brought back to the club interesting and helpful suggestions. The club was entertained by Miss Crum and the Tironian Club. In keeping with the time of year a demonstration on flower arrangement was given by Mr. Auld. This brought to a close the outstanding activities of the year.

The International Relations Club fills a real place in the school life, striving to create an interest in and to provide some real information on international affairs for college women. The program committee arranged interesting and informative programs for the meetings, held every two weeks.

Forty new members were initiated into the club at the beginning of the second semester.

During the economic institute in March the junior and senior members of the club were privileged to meet Miss Jenny Lee, member of the British Parliament, at a luncheon given by Dr. and Mrs. C. P. McClelland.

The club sent Miss Holmes and two other delegates—Winifred Close and Elizabeth Buker—to the International Relations Conference at Ripon College in Ripon, Wisconsin, April thirteenth and fourteenth. Several other members also attended this inspiring conference.

There have been a number of meetings during the year with outside speakers, as well as meetings devoted solely to social purposes.

Director W. Z. FLETCHER

The Madrigal Club is the college glee club open to all students of the college. The membership of this year was seventy-five.

The formal concert was held on Friday night, March 17. It was made up of music by such eminent composers as Bach, Schubert, Elgar, Kramer, Clokey, and Dett. Miss Mary Tormey assisted as accompanist and soloist. She played two groups of difficult compositions. A violin obligato by the Misses Althea Bush and Lurene Plumlee accompanied one of the songs. An incidental solo in "Listen to the Lambs" was sung by Miss Mildred Rose. Several of the songs by the chorus were memorized. All showed a deep appreciation and thorough understanding.

The Tironian Club is the departmental organization of the Department of Secretarial Education. Any girl taking credit hours in the department is eligible for membership. The club is for the promotion of the social interests of its members as well as to give them opportunities to meet and listen to people of note from the fields of business. The motto of the club is "If at first you do succeed, keep your head."

Meetings are held every third Thursday of each month in Theta Hall. There is a diversity of entertainment during the year. The program for 1933-1934 consisted of parties, speakers, a spelling bee, a spring formal banquet, and a picnic to finish the year.

Every month the Club publishes The Radio which is the paper of and about the department. Lucille Springman is editor-in-chief and Helen Louise Moore is her assistant. Marion Nance is chairman of the reporters; Catherine Keeling, of the publishers; and Edna Mae Owen, the distributors.

The department of speech has been outstanding in campus activities this year. The Dramatic Club presented "Sun-Up" by Lula Vollmer, Robert Dunmore in "Emperor Jones" by Eugene O'Neill, and an evening of three one-act plays. The final production is the annual commencement play.

Dramatic Club

The Inter-Society One-Act Play Contest was won by Lambda Alpha Mu Society who presented "Rainbow Gold." The department also sponsored the annual high school speech contest held at MacMurray March 3.

The Dramatic Club held its annual banquet at the Colonial Inn, April 7. The theme of the program was "Drama in Review."

Debate

The debate activities of the college have been most successful this year. Dr. Paul Anderson, professor of religious instruction and speech, coached the affirmative teams, and Professor George Adams, of the history department, coached the negative teams. The debate squad met two evenings a week for discussion of the question.

The question for debate this season was "Resolved that the powers of the President of the United States should be substantially increased as a settled policy." The debates were non-decision. Rosaline Boland and Claire Rawson were the members of the affirmative team with Betty Vaughn and Jeanne Cincebeaux alternating; Helen Wright and Catherine Keeling, the negative.

The debate schedule was as follows:

February 9—Affirmative vs. Shurtleff's Negative team, here.
February 15—Negative vs. Women of University of Missouri at Columbia, Mo.
February 16—Negative vs. Washington University, there.
February 17—Negative vs. Shurtleff College, at Alton.
February 27—Affirmative vs. University of Missouri, here.
March 6—Affirmative vs. Washington University, here.
March 8—Affirmative vs. Knox College, at Galesburg.
March 9—Affirmative vs. Carthage College, there.
March 10—Affirmative vs. Monmouth College, there.
March 14—Negative vs. Monmouth College, here.
March 21—Negative vs. Illinois College Men's Team, here.
March 23—Affirmative vs. Illinois College Men's Team, there.

Practice debates were held at Warrensburg, Latham, Roodhouse, and Barry, Illinois; both the negative and affirmative teams were represented by MacMurray. The girls participating in these debates were Rosaline Boland, Catherine Keeling, Helen Wright, Iona Geach, Jeanne Cincebeaux, Thyra Smith, and Mildred Horn.

The Inter-Society Debate Contest, using the same question for debate was won by Phi Nu Society, represented by Rosaline Boland and Margaret Goebel, with Belles Lettres Society, second.

Plays

"Sun-Up," a three-act play by Lula Vollmer was the Thanksgiving play presented by the Dramatic Club. The play takes place in the mountains of Western North Carolina and deals with the mountain whites.

The ignorance of these mountaineers about any activity outside their local community is evident throughout the play. The story centers around Widow Cagle, a woman whose apparently hardened exterior is unable to conceal the tenderness of a noble heart. Her dawning perception that love for all humanity is greater than personal grievances and mountain feuds is the keynote of the play.

The cast was as follows:

Widow Cagle Mary Alice Buzick
Pap Todd Miriam Fork
Rufe Cagle Helen Wright
Emmy Todd, Daughter of Pap Todd Mary Frances Scott
Jim Weeks Mary Dailey
Bud Meredith Storr
A Stranger Thyra Smith
The Preacher Rosaline Boland

The Dramatic Club presented Robert Dunmore in "The Emperor Jones," a one-act play in eight scenes by Eugene O'Neill, January 20. Mr. Dunmore is a graduate of the Northwestern School of Speech.

The setting of the play is an island in the West Indies. The play has two predominating ideas, namely, that man himself retrogrades when he is mastered by fear, and on the other hand, there is a return to the primitive and elemental by the primitive type when there is no continuous influence of an uplifting element.

The characters were:

Brutus Jones, Emperor Robert Dunmore
Henry Smithers, a Cockney Trader William Clark
An Old Native Woman Suzanne Schaeffer
The Little Formless Fears, Jeff, The Negro Convicts, The Slave Market, The Slaves, The Witch Doctor.

An evening of three one-act plays was given Saturday, March 3. They were "A Good and Obedient Young Man," a dramatization of an old Japanese folk-tale, "Bumble Puppy," an Arkansas folk play, and "Rainbow Gold," a fantasy. The latter, presented by Lambda Alpha Mu and directed by Eleanor Jane Milward, is the winner of the Inter-Society Play Contest.

Senior Ball

The Senior Ball opens the social season and is the subject of anticipatory thoughts and dreams of both juniors and seniors. For the juniors it is the introduction to upperclass activities and for the seniors it is one of the last memorable events.

The seniors elected Miss Willia Stephenson Ball Queen but her identity was kept a secret until she and her escort, Mr. Paul Reddick, of Jerseyville, took their place in the receiving line. Miss Stephenson and Mr. Reddick as the feted guests of the evening led the Grand March. They were followed by Miss Virginia Browning, Ball Chairman, and her guest, Mr. John Martin, and next in line were Miss Betty Ann Brown, Class President, with Mr. Louis McLaughlin of Salem, and Miss Elsie Ream, Junior Class President, with Mr. Cecil Giffin of Illinois College.

Junior Prom

On April 21 the Junior Prom, sponsored by the class of 1935, was held in the Social room.

Helen Wright was chairman of the prom and to her much of the credit for its success is due.

Members of the Senior class were guests at the prom. A total of about one hundred and twenty-five couples attended.

One of the main features of the prom was the Grand March led by Helen Wright, her escort, Mr. Lukeman, and Elsie Ream, class president and her escort, Mr. Giffen.

The reception line which was formed before the dance consisted of the Junior and Senior class presidents, the prom chairman, and their escorts, the Junior and Senior class advisors, Dean Hawkins and Dr. and Mrs. McClelland.

The Redheads

"Dyed in the wool" is the motto of the Redhead Club organized by Kay Gourley early in the fall as the first redhead club in the college and one of the few in the state. There are twenty-two members—membership being restricted to all those having genuine red hair.

The Redheads had a chop suey supper in Mrs. Schaeffer's home for their first meeting. Kay Gourley was elected Reddest, the president; Pauline Crapp, Redder, the vice-president; Mrs. Schaeffer, Well-Red, the adviser.

The club was organized for the purpose of fun. The Redheads are out to be the "peppiest" group on the campus.

Athletics As They Were

Gym was a handy thing in the late nineties! It is said that the teacher of Elocution who came in 1896 taught physical culture—as it then was called and began work in real physical exercise with dumb bells and wands. No Gym was there, but this teacher walked through the halls ringing a hand bell—and the young ladies came from their rooms and went through their exercises in the corridors. The first gym was also the Elocution Studio and was located where the Corrective Gym room now does its Stunts.

Formals of Yester Years and Now

Before the time of the spring vacation, which has been given for the last four years, the Monday night following Easter was known as the night of the Easter reception. This, the most formal event of the year, and the cause of much palpitation of the heart, at the thought of "going down" the receiving line for the timid one, was the time of the year when the very prettiest of pretty frocks were brought out of boxes and donned, and questions of clothes and exact social usage were most rife. "Excellent training for the girls and very good for them, since they are so excited about it," said the dean as she answered the one hundred and oneth question on perhaps the correct way to shake hands or on whether or not a hint should be dropped that the man from home might not forget his dress suit. "What a nice thing for the girls, as it gives them something so different to do," said the Faculty, as the girls went past chattering busily. "How perfectly delightful," came from the girl who revelled in the social whirl and "I suppose it is good for me, but I am scared to death," from the girl to whom such events were not the usual thing.

But these formals! Did they dance? No indeed—they sat and pursued polite conversation in the chapel seats—and then walked around to the Society halls and had a delicious supper, chicken salad and all the fixings! What a change are our formals of today!!

The formals of today are the event of events, stimulating "clothes talks" of ravishing formals and brilliant tiaras, whispers of "Who's the Ball Queen?" and sending of Senior Ball invitations to the boys at home. The social room is transformed—palms, flowers, dimmed lights, and gleaming polished dance floor! The receiving line today excites little comment; it is merely the formal introduction to a glorious evening of dancing and excitement. But too soon corsages wilt, the orchestra plays "After the Ball is Over" and the long-looked-for and long-to-be-remembered night is gone.

Navy Captain—Jean Hosafros.

Army Captain—Virginia Cameron.

The Thanksgiving Army-Navy game was the most exciting game of the season. The Navy led at the half 2-1. The second half was even faster than the first and the final score was 3-2 with the Army as victors. Virginia Cameron was captain of the Army team and Jean Hosafros of the Navy.

The hockey season started with the sister classes playing each other. The Sophomores and Seniors tied and the Juniors won their game. Next were the Senior-Freshman games in which the score was tied and the Junior-Sophomore game which was won by the Juniors. In the last games the Juniors were victorious over the Seniors making them champions and the Sophomores beat the Freshmen in an easy game.

New Sports

In order to provide a wider field of recreational activity the Athletic Association this year chose three new managers for the field of these highly organized sports. Olive Young was made manager of volley ball; Sally Fisher of deck tennis, shuffle board, and ping-pong; and Marjorie Voigt, of archery.

A ping-pong tournament and an archery meet were planned for the spring. Shuffle board and deck tennis were offered for individual amusement and recreation.

Swimming Meet

The freshman swimming team placed first in the annual swimming meet held Friday, April 13, in the college pool. Each class enters a team in this contest. The high point girl for each team was Virginia Cameron, senior; Martha Jeanne Bailey, junior; Dorothy Conover, sophomore; Elizabeth King, freshman.

ORDER OF EVENTS:

1. Swimming for Form, Side Stroke, Breast Stroke, Crawl, Back Crawl, Trudgen, English Overarm.
2. 20 yard Freestyle race.
3. Plunge for Distance.
4. 50 yard Backstroke race.
5. Balloon race.
6. 60 yard Breaststroke race.
7. Underwater race.
8. 20 yard English Overarm race.

Ping-Pong—Volley Ball

This year the Athletic Association inaugurated volley-ball as a major sport in their program. The group system replaced the class competition and teams of as near equal ability as possible were chosen to insure greater interest. Four teams, Blues, Reds, Yellows, and Greens competed in the round robin tournament in which the Blues were victorious. The climax of the season was the victory of the girls in the game against the dads on Dad's Day.

Basketball

Since the seniors unfortunately had no team, the basketball tournament was somewhat shortened this season. As the freshmen were defeated in both of the games, the real contest was between the junior and sophomore teams. The latter proved victorious, thus continuing the record which they established last year.

Continuing the policy of last year, the Army and Navy teams were chosen to play the final game of the season. Both teams were fortunate in finding the hoop, making it an almost undecided game until the final whistle, when the score stood 31-34 in favor of the Navy (junior-freshmen).

Tennis

The Freshman Tournament is the only class tennis match which has been played off as yet. It was held in the fall and was a great source of enthusiasm for the freshmen. In the finals, Carol Whitman and Sally Fisher met in an interesting 3 set match. The match went 2-1 in favor of Fisher, the set scores being 6-2 for Fisher, 6-0 for Whitman, 6-1 for Fisher.

The upper class tournaments will be held soon after spring vacation. The class winners will play each other in fast matches, and by this sort of elimination the school champion will be chosen.

Last year Martha Jeanne Bailey won first place in the tennis finals.

Normal Trip

The Illinois State Normal University at Normal, Illinois, held a college play day, October 21. It was an invitational affair and a meet in which the contest idea was not stressed.

The girls who went to Normal from MacMurray were Jean Hosafros, tennis singles; Martha Jeanne Bailey and Virginia Cameron, tennis doubles team; Marjorie Voigt, archery; Jane Bentley, Eloise Chumley, Helen Stoutenborough, Kaye Frentzel, Olive Young, Vera McMillen, Frances Redden, Margaret Bailey, Kathleen Anderson, Virginia Richardson, Dorothy Conover, Marie Tyler, Martha Bess, Myra White, Bertha Peck, hockey.

The hockey team defeated Bradley College 5-0, but went down in its second game against State Normal 3-2.

In the tennis doubles Jeanne Bailey and Virginia Cameron defeated the State Normal 6-4 and lost their second match, which was the final one of the tourney to the University of Illinois 9-7. In the singles Jean Hosafros was defeated in a close battle by Carbondale 11-9.

May Day, 1934

May Day—the day of long cherished memories, of joyous happiness, and of great suspense until the moment when the queen majestically makes her appearance and thereby reveals her identity.

This year an entirely different idea was carried out, being patterned after the Greek Olympic games and festivals of antiquity. The title was "In MacMurrayland" and much honor is due Jeanne Kendall for her winning plot. The old Greeks had nothing on the MacMurrayites —in fact we went them one better and had a panorama of sports in which all participated rather than a favored skilful few.

Modern Olympic stars in modern sport costume contested in swimming, tennis, archery, volley-ball, deck-tennis, ping-pong, and many other sports. Divisions were made into beginning, intermediate and advanced groups, so that all would have an equal chance.

At the end of the games, a trumpet sounded, which meant hurrying over to the field. Here Hermes, the runner brought a message from Aphrodite, goddess of Love and Beauty, that she had sent the most beautiful girl in all MacMurrayland to preside over the festival and—"from her hands you shall receive your reward."

After the beautiful processional and ever-impressive coronation of the Queen, dancers appeared and honored her gracious majesty with lovely dancing. A game of cage-ball in which all took part concluded this part of the festivities.

Suddenly the appearance of a fiery-chariot announced the arrival of Apollo, who brought laurels for the winners—these were presented by the Queen.

The May-Pole dance brought to a close another never-to-be-forgotten event—for what would be May Day without a May-Pole—just another thing we had over the Greeks.

Economic Institute

An Institute on The New Deal was held at MacMurray College, March nineteenth and twentieth. This Institute was made possible through the generosity of Mr. Chester A. Smith, Peekskill, New York.

The first speaker at the Institute was Stanley High, Litt. D., Washington Correspondent of the Literary Digest and an Editor of the Christian Herald. That the New Deal is the only safe way out for America, that it opens new paths of opportunity, and that the group which represents the greatest menace at the present time is stand-pat conservatives was the message of Mr. High.

William H. Spencer, J. D., Dean of the School of Commerce, University of Chicago, in discussing "Long Run Implications of the N. R. A." viewed the New Deal as a spirit which will make over business. He said, "The recovery experimentation may as a maximum, completely change the nature of business; certainly as a minimum it will leave an indelible imprint."

"The A. A. A.: Farming for Ourselves or for the World" was the subject of Clifford V. Gregory, Editor of the "Prairie Farmer." He gave a scientific and yet a clear and comprehensive discussion of the vital subject of agricultural problems.

Miss Jennie Lee, member of British Parliament, sounded a warning that unless the United States succeeds in making liberal capitalism, as now represented by the New Deal, work to the benefit of the people, our nation may take its place in the procession of countries where liberalism has been smashed. Her topic was "The New Deal as Viewed by Britain."

The concluding speech "The Outlook for Money and Prices" was made by Harland H. Allen, A. M., President of Harland H. Allen and Company, Chicago, who pointed out that "When we can find a way to shake off the shackles of the benefits of accumulating large amounts of capital, then we will have found a way to stop capital from accumulating in such large quantities that it cannot be used."

Dad's Day, 1934

Resulting from the organization of the "Dad's Club" the previous year, this year's Dad's Day was actually a day in which the Dads took active part in various entertainments during the day. Because of their participation the day was a most successful one. Too, the weather was pleasant, making it possible for a good many Dads that had never been here before to attend.

The day began with a swimming meet by the girls. After this meet the Dads assembled to plan for the stunts which were to be given for that day and to elect officers for the ensuing year. Following dinner for the Dads in the dining hall, all adjourned to the gym for a series of stunts. First were those given by the Dads. This proved to be a rare treat! Then the daughters tried their skill.

Later in the afternoon a volleyball game between the Dads and daughters was enjoyed. The Dads proved themselves to be just as versatile as their darling daughters.

The night performance given by the girls consisted of two one-act plays, "Rainbow Gold" and "Bumble Puppy," and a series of stunts preceded by the opening chorus as a welcome to the Dads. Dr. McClelland previously had made a formal welcome.

The plans this year were new and will be carried on next year. It is hoped the Dads will participate even more next year.

Hail to the Dads!

Calendar

SEPTEMBER

Freshmen here, there, and everywhere—scampering to lectures, sightseeing the fair city of Jacksonville, and rushing pell-mell to see a free show. Upperclassmen arriving on the scene and greeting each other with shrieks of joy. Formal chapel at which Dr. Mac expounded on the text—"Reverence the Almighty and one will know what course to take." Sighs of relief from the north section of the chapel. The pressing question to be a P. E. major or not to be has been lifted from the sagging shoulders of the poor freshmen and now rests in better hands. Church receptions. Some girls have already regained the MacMurray appetite for they appeared at all four corners just as refreshments were being served! Y. W. C. A. Big and Little Sister party—oh, those taffy apples.

OCTOBER

Founders' Day, special chapel service, and banquet in the evening at which Dr. Mac speaks on Germany. Rush week with all its excitement and suspense. Then comes Sherwood Eddy with his brightly colored maps. He keeps everyone awake. Salt and pepper shakers and sugar bowls sit on the tables undisturbed! Senior Recognition—how dignified and important one looks in a cap and gown. Hallowe'en party by the A. A.—and Myra White as the Spirit of the Fire Drill.

Sunday afternoon in Jane Hall lounge. Sprechen Sie Deutsch? Harker Hall. Old Main in Winter. May Day. Music Hall. Four in a boat. Ministers' Conference! Seniors. Five dollars fine! Studio hours. Junior lounge. They're off. Bird's eye view.

Miss Hay duly impressed. The first of the Artists' Series featuring Leo Podolsky—the Russian pianist. Remember the selection played with only one hand? How some of us would like to do that well with both! And to finish the month arrives the long hoped for Freshman Day when limp green ribbons are discarded. And, oh, that freshman song, how it thrilled the old-timers.

NOVEMBER

The Illiwoco dance. The freshmen are beaming with joy. Hockey games in full swing —the juniors coming out on top with the cup. The violinist Thaviu greatly enjoyed. Inter-society debates fought and won. Senior Ball with Willia Stephenson making a charming Ball Queen—Oh, the agonies of the receiving line. One's name is unrecognizable in a short time. Thanksgiving Vespers with Dr. Lugg as guest speaker. Junior Class Recognition with Elsie Ream receiving the cup for the most representative sophomore of the previous year. Good choice say we all. And now dawns Thanksgiving Day—bright and fair. Cinnamon rolls and the hockey game. Army victorious. Tea dance in the afternoon—supper on paper plates—and then "Sun-Up." Well presented.

DECEMBER

Bishop McDowell telling us to formulate a philosophy of life. The philosophy class looking wise. We wonder why! Y. W. bazaar with quite a run on oddly-shaped lacquered boxes.

Afternoon tea. Old Main. After the Senior Ball. Catching flies, Dixie? A stairway in Jane. The gym hidden by foliage. The sunporch. Another of May Day 1933. Jane Hall in late autumn.

Charles Wakefield Cadman and his quartet perform—more to the appreciation of those in the rear seats than those in the front rows. The Y. W. Christmas party for the poor kiddies. Even haughty seniors playing on the floor with trains and dolls. Christmas Vespers. Ugh—caroling in the rain—but oh, the fire in the fireplace and the cakes and hot chocolate with whipped cream. Christmas vacation here at last!

JANUARY

Back to work again—some with an increased poundage. Leola Aikman, the coloratura soprano, thrills us all. Emperor Jones worthy of praise—although nightmares and ruined nerves ensue. Hectic rushing around. Library constantly packed with weary-eyed souls poring over huge volumes and scribbling madly at term papers. Exams upon us. Many reactions—some of us frightened into increased study; others frankly giving up the ghost; while yet others enjoying life as it comes with movies, novels, or domestic activities, such as pressing and washing clothes or making fudge. What a life!

"The ivy twines." "Stoops to conquer." Formation. Last chapel. Jane Reception Hall. Jane in winter. Dean Hawkins. Court pool. Last chapel again. Oh yeah? Do you recognize this? Art studio.

FEBRUARY

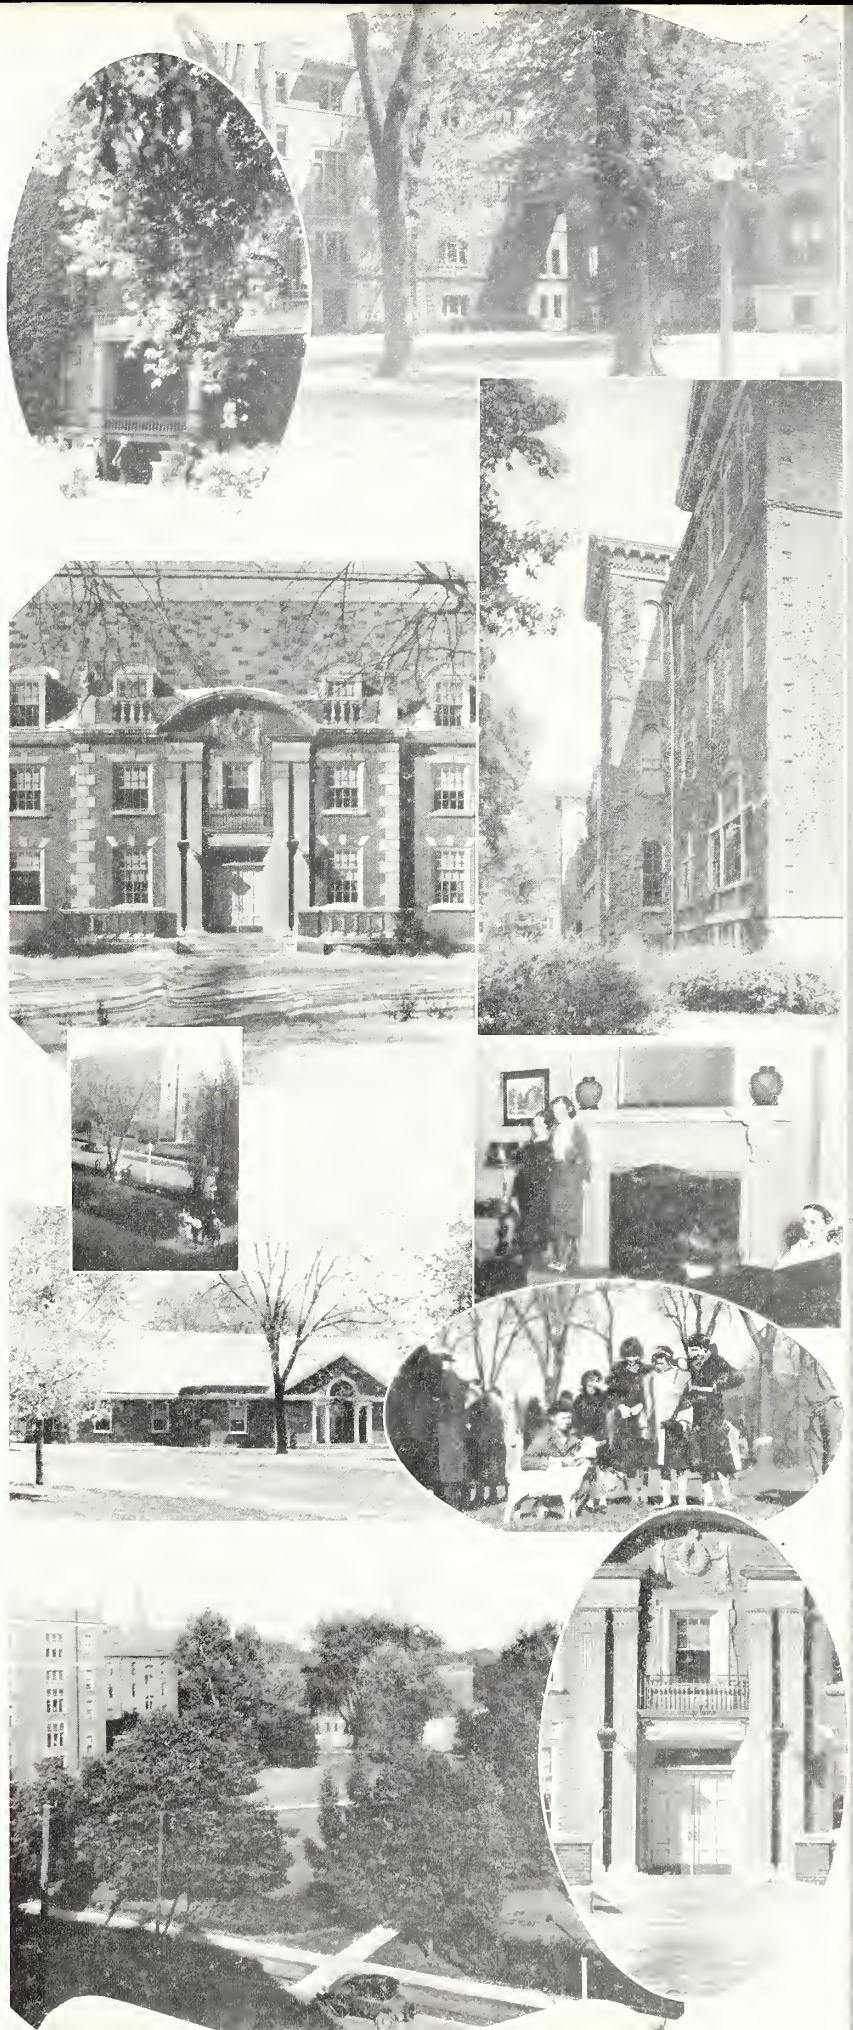

Wan faces appearing brighter and bloodshot eyes becoming clearer. Exams are over but —the second semester is here with classes galore. Day of Prayer is a life-saver. The Y. W. service fine. Debates beginning—the first one with Shurtleff College. Heart Sister Week a huge success. Sunday evening supper a fitting close to the week. Flowers and boxes of candy in profusion. Basketball games in full swing—the sophomores coming out victorious.

MARCH

A temperamental month—a day or two of sunshine with gingham dresses in evidence. Then wind-clouds-snow-rain-or-sleet — and back to woolen clothes we hurry. Padriac Colum greatly enjoyed—though the poor dear did have a time with his water. Senior Tea and Arthur, radiant in his splendid suit, opening the front door of Jane. The usual MacMurray routine gone while we entertain the high school speech contestants. Mid-year plays well presented. Bumble-puppy would be a fine sport to add to the Physical Education curriculum. The correctives might wax strong on it. Debate trips being made and debaters coming here. Dad's Day—and weren't the stunts good? The Madrigal Club "composed of eighty-five pieces" carolling lustily. The sophomores dance to the tune of the radio.

Trees. Jane Hall again. Library. As seen from third floor. Dining hall. Resting. Navy mascot. By stately elms surrounded. Welcome.

The Institute, the most interesting one for years. Stanley High's smile must have done its work, for at breakfast the next morning the query—"Is Stanley High married?"—is rather frequent! And Miss Jennie Lee—a born orator with a delightful accent. And only twenty-nine. Some of us have a right to despair. Y.W. Easter party for the children. Easter Vespers. New bonnets appearing. The Orchestra Concert with the Music Appreciation students in full attendance putting the finishing touches to their notebooks. Oh, good—spring vacation! Into our families' loving arms we fly.

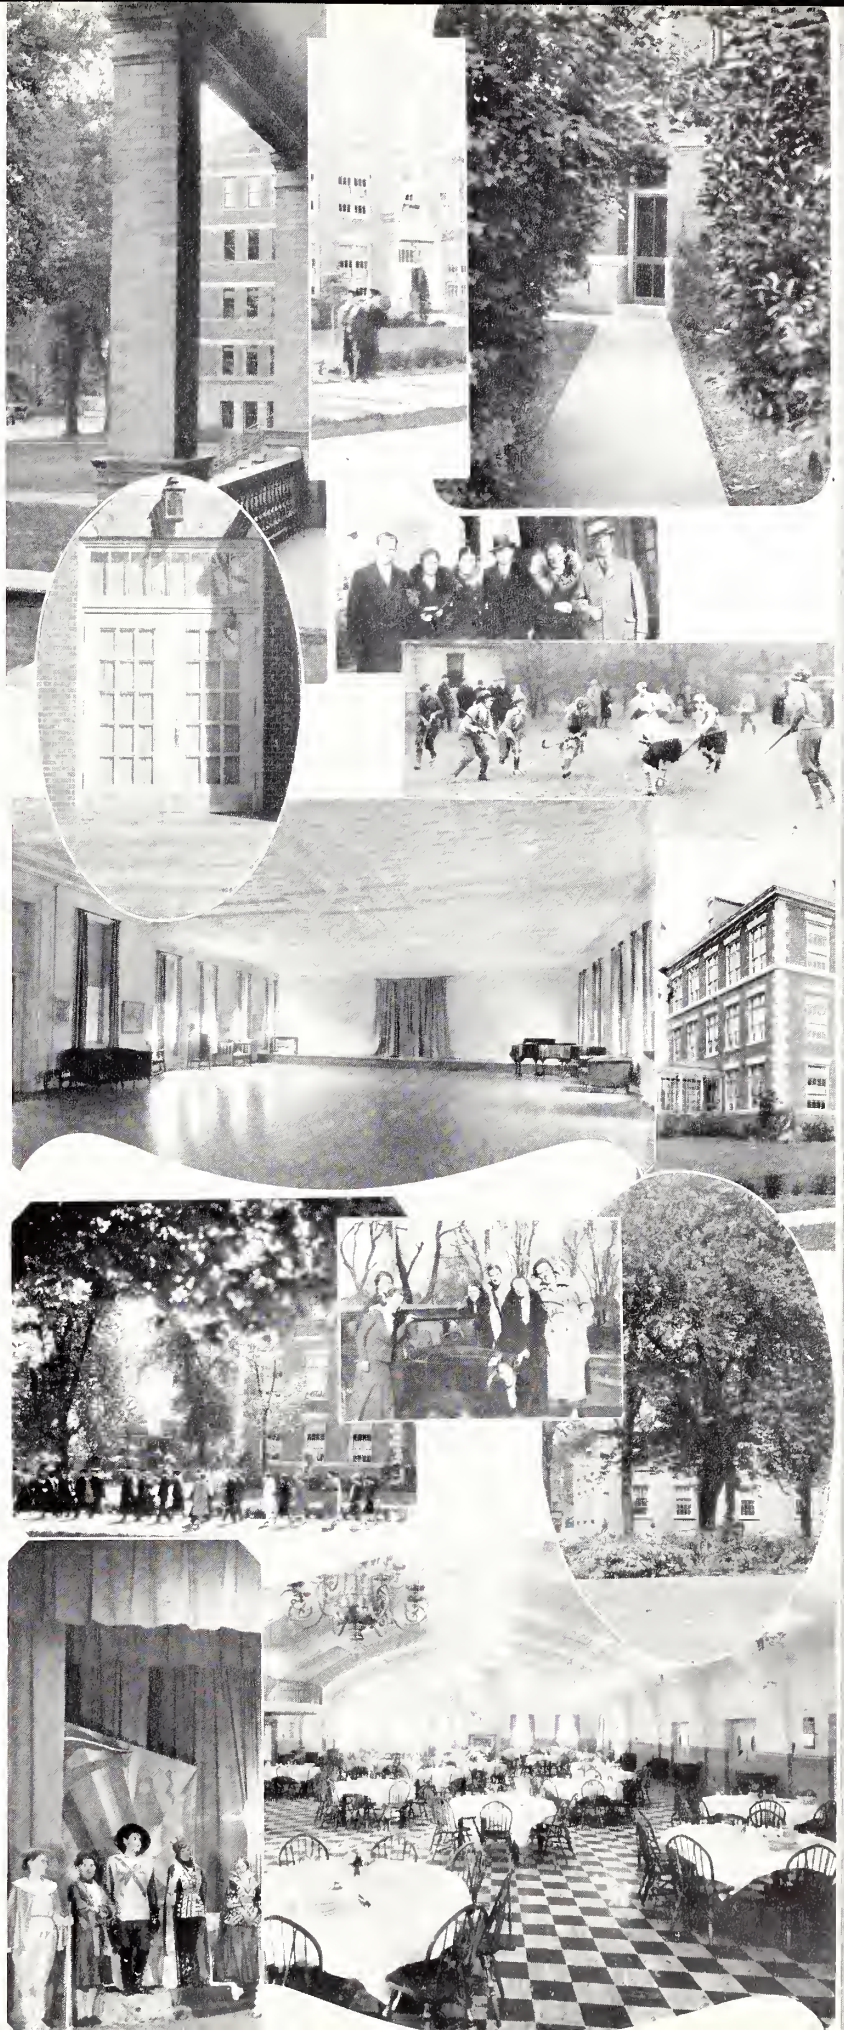

APRIL

The lawn a lovely dark green. The seniors parading across the dining hall to eat in state and to taste the long-anticipated senior cake. Then Ted Shawn and his men dancers—something new and different in our young lives. Swimming meet. Senior recitals. The junior prom with all its hurry and scurry—and the freshman frolic. And as the final event of the month the Wesley-Mathers Declamation contest.

MAY

Soon will be arriving May Day with its attendant thrills. 'Tis the month of sunbaths—long hikes—picnic suppers—term papers—and exams. The underclassmen leaving to give the seniors a few days of quiet (?) in which to meditate over the events of the past four years. Then the baccalaureate address and lastly—Commencement. Good luck, Seniors!

From the swing. Meditation. A quiet nook. Where we dine occasionally. Sugar and spice with puppy dog tails. In the thick of it. Our spacious Social Room. The South end of Science Hall —where plants and frogs flourish. MacMurray on parade. Car-sitters. Spring. From "A Kiss for Cinderella." The filling station.

Dr. McClelland, Our Devoted Prexy, Comes in 1926

Under his leadership we see our College growing, expanding, taking on new beauty and being;—Senior houses are established on East State Street—more students come—the campus spreads out into new areas with the added Athletic Field; MacMurray Science Hall raises its noble walls—the Dining Hall with marked beauty and dignity of proportion adds a gay and festive quality to our college life. And Jane Hall—with its beautiful equipment and gracious atmosphere casts its spell upon us.

Dr. C. P. McClelland

Thanks be to all the history that lies behind us—to the noble devoted service of its leaders—their lives of service and vision for the College—and thanks again to those warm and generous friends, our MacMurrays and the donors who have helped to make us what we are, and what we know we will be. Hail to the Illinois Woman's College of the past—the MacMurray of the present and the still greater MacMurray of the future—Hail! and Hail again! ! Hail! ! !

Today at MacMurray

Today mid-September is a signal for MacMurray girls far and near. They come many miles, across the states and the ocean, by steamer, train, plane, automobile, and bus to begin or continue the exciting life of a college student. On arrival, a new girl is met by a Y. W. C. A. "big sister" who ushers her across the wide threshold of Old Main, and into college life. If she is an old girl she is greeted by old friends, familiar sights, sounds, suggestions of by-gone pleasures. The campus becomes transformed from its summer stillness into the hustle and bustle of girls in possession. The buildings, before desolate and passive, now boast of life — floating, billowing chintz, cheerful voices, and rosy lamp light in the evening.

Registration passes and life settles down to study and seriousness. A typical day would include a round of classes or laboratories in MacMurray Hall, chapel, reference reading in the library, a mad dash to Hamilton's or Mathew's for a coke, conferences, committees, tennis, afternoon tea, or perhaps a leisurely walk out to Wag's for chocolate pie, an Artist Series or a recital in the evening.

Each day is absorbingly interesting but some days are red letter days in the life of every MacMurray girl. First comes Founder's Day when tiny candles are lighted to send their messages to the MacMurray girls all over the world.

Excitement! Hay-racks, formals, rushbooks — all evidence that rushing of upper class girls by the four literary societies is in full progress. Two days of dinner dates, breakfasts, teas, formal dances are enough to make any industrious student resort to "cuts" and neglect her studies. Day of silence, bids slipped under doors—SUSPENSE—RELIEF! and thus ends another hectic, exciting college event. As October passes she leaves us still tasting the Hallowe'en apples of the A. A. party and wondering what November will bring.

November's Illiwoco benefit dance with its problems—a dollar and a man—which results in a crowded dance floor, aching feet, and a nice supplement to the funds of the Year Book.

The Thanksgiving season with its corridor breakfast and cinnamon rolls, Army-Navy hockey game, dinner and speeches, tea-dance, and dramatic club play, offers a homecoming to old grads and former students which is so delightful and full that even the homesick Freshman is won over.

Then the Vespers and the Christmas carols that we sing, red vacation candles in the dining hall, Y. W. C. A. bazaar, and the children's party—not to mention vigorous exercises, diets, and a daily tabulation of weight.

After vacation serious study for a month and then our Mid Years make us dig. Heart Sisters begin to say "Heart! Heart! who has my heart?" providing great fun and relief from tension after exams, ending on Valentine's Day when each girl is revealed as the "guilty one" who has been bestowing particular attention and interesting things upon her "Heart Sister." And then the annual Faculty Party—when the Faculty put on their stunt. Sophomore Dance in Spring, and jolly, frolicking Dad's Day, when daughter's skill is spread for Dad's delight.

Easter vacation and Freshmen Frolic, where the youngest MacMurray girls hold court in the social room and the Sophomores take turns peeking behind the curtain. Spring night, bright stars, sailing moon and a whispering breeze all lend their charms to the outside world to make the Junior Prom a happy thing. The social room is a fairy land of beauty with girls in sheer pastel formals, the air filled with the perfume of spring flowers, colored lights, glittering balls, and happy feet keeping time to the strains of the orchestra, the last formal of the year.

May Day with its outdoor breakfast in Lilac Court, its dancing, its prayers that the sun may shine, is Mother's Day at MacMurray, when every daughter does her best to look the picture of health.

Classes

FRESHMEN

The Freshman year at college is really the most important for in its span we make the adjustments without which we cannot grow in college work. We came to college from small high schools where everything was planned for us. In college new rules are a part of the college life, a test and measurement of reliability. This innovation of independence taps each girl's own judgment and inner self. Then, too, one is aware that one is being sized up by the rest of the school. Incessantly we turn for guidance to the instructions received at home.

Orientation Week, registration, making new friends, discovering Hamilton's and Mathew's, church "get-togethers," learning to study, Y. W. parties, the peculiar honor of the Board, homesickness, lectures, blue books, chapel and gym overcuts; the utter horror of three hour exams, Dad's Day, blessed spring vacation picnics at Nichols Park and May Day—all strange new things to the Freshmen. In spite of these varied entertainments the year is not much like college movies. Though we may not have been speechless with pleasure all the year, we must admit that it is one of the most interesting and stimulating periods that we are ever likely to experience.

Can we meet all that the first year heaps upon us? If so, we continue to satisfy the desire for knowledge, freedom and independence.

SOPHOMORES

Sophomore girls come back to college with renewed determination. It is fun to see old friends, the familiar nooks and corners frequented the year before. At last the class has gained the much longed for esteem of a rather large group —the new freshmen. An intense and friendly rivalry grows up between the two classes—each trying to better the other in clean and short-witted sport.

The sophomore year — beginning with the hectic and exciting Rush Week —is the year of outside activities. Societies, Dramatic Club, Tironian, I. R. C., Greetings Staff, debate, A. A. hockey, basketball, etc. Our studies interest us more, partly because they are not all required this year and partly because we did learn a little bit about study and concentration during freshman year.

We have big arguments about religion, the honor system, and everything else because, while the freshman usually just absorbs impressions, the sophomore registers them and gets a better perspective of things in general. Often new interests arise, and we change our major or "concentration," sometimes only to change back the next year, or to get another new one. At the end of the sophomore year we are tired but happy for we have at last an inkling of what it's all about.

JUNIORS

The Junior year is really the nicest of all because of greater academic and social freedom. There is more responsibility, of course, but even then not as much as the seniors have. We can at last take the courses we want, and consequently find more pleasure in study than ever before.

The traditional halfway mark is passed. The realization that just one year between us and a life of experience is stronger than ever to the junior. At times the future seems baffling; at others, a time when one can accomplish at least a part of her aspirations. The class is smaller, yet a great spirit of impartiality and unity holds the girls together.

As Juniors, we have a more possessive attitude toward the college, go to more of the lectures and concerts, and realizing how little we know, want to read more and study harder, although we haven't time for either.

By the end of the year, after watching May Day and Jacksonville's lovely spring and commencement for the third time, we are surprised to find ourselves growing a little sentimental about it all. We feel quite sad and almost old.

SENIORS

These four college years of work, responsibilities, joys, and visions have passed rapidly. There are only a few more grains of sand remaining in the college hour glass.

The Senior year is not quite what we planned. There are some required subjects we had forgotten about, and while we are sitting back thinking we are entitled to a well earned rest, there are always some low grades to startle us into work again. Toward spring memories of the four years begin to haunt us. Senior coffees remind us that we are to separate all too soon. Everything's over. We wish we had studied harder and had taken those courses we always meant to and could never get in. Never again will we see a golden Jacksonville autumn—at graduation we feel very young and ignorant and sad. It is for us to make the seemingly abstract the concrete.
